

Benefits of Training as a Mediator

In addition to obvious opportunity to develop a new professional practice as a Civil/Commercial, Family or Workplace Mediator, mediation training provides transferable skills that can be integrated into existing workload enabling development of a more sophisticated understanding of the complexities and context of conflict, its avoidance and resolution.

Additionally, at a time when it is more important than ever to ensure your services remain competitive and marketable, mediator training means access to another, often complementary, income stream and can offer a cheaper, faster and more dignified alternative means of resolving disputes widening the potential market for your services.

What some of our recent trainees are saying about ADR Group's training:

"An excellent programme, thought provoking, challenging and highly relevant for the consummate HR professional"

Donna Page, Fellow of the UK Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development

"The training exceeded my expectation because of the simulated exercises and the way in which through well placed questions one is able to bring parties closer together. A fantastic way to learn and incorporate theory as you learn it"

The Hon. Brahmi P. Padayachi, High Court, Durban, South Africa

"I don't generally praise without good reason - so a row of 5's is well earned and deserved"

Nigel Crockford, PWC

"Top quality trainers that are very knowledgeable in the field of mediation and who have practical experience in the real world. Their positive and helpful criticism, practical ideas and teachings instilled confidence in me"

Lex de Haan, The Hague, Holland

"Incredibly interesting, challenging and sexy"

Amanda Fogg, Independent Mediator

"FriaryLaw are delighted to continue to work in partnership with ADR Group, who are without doubt the leading commercial mediation provider in the UK"

Oliver Connolly, FriaryLaw, Ireland
