This two-day intensive course, delivered by use of presentations, case discussions, role-plays and conflict testing, meets the requirements of the Family Mediation Council for those wishing to directly consult with children in mediation.

Training will be delivered by group discussion and role plays as well as incorporating input from trainees. Additionally, trainees will be required to complete portfolio work which may be completed during and /or after the course. On successful completion (and police clearance), you will be registered with FMA/ADR and qualified to provide this service.
